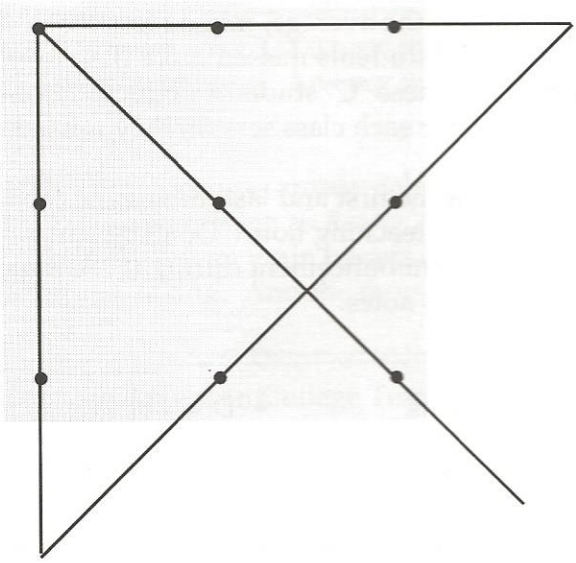
On the other hand, the right brain professor's grading scale will be more flexible. You can negotiate more easily with him.

Watch your professor in class. Does he constantly look to his left or to his right? If he favors his left, he is right brain oriented. If he favors his right he is left brain oriented. Sit in a seat on the side of the room he favors and you'll get more attention.

- If we use both the right and left sides of our brain, we will have better recall and consequently better grades.

SOLUTION:



The right brain person won't fear leaving the exacting confines of the left brain's original square. The right side of our brain tends to wander off while our left brain seems to say, "stay put."

5. Launch a Full-Scale Attack.

In addition to reading the text early, give the first two weeks everything you've got. Overstudy so that you can almost repeat everything in your sleep. After a good start you might level off to an easier pace – if you can.
